What is the South African Human Rights Commission?

Transforming society
Securing rights
Restoring dignity

What are human rights?

Human rights are the basic rights that everyone has, simply because they are human.

Human rights are the foundation of our democracy. Our Constitution and all our laws are based on human rights. These rights are listed in the Bill of Rights, Chapter 2 of the South African Constitution, the highest law in our country.

The Constitution was adopted to heal the divisions of the past and establish a society based on democratic values, social justice and fundamental human rights.

The Constitution recognises the dignity and the rights of every human being. No matter who you are in South Africa, you are entitled to just and equal treatment.

The Bill of Rights

- Equality
- Human dignity
- Life
- Freedom and security of the person
- Prohibits slavery, servitude and forced labour
- Privacy
- Freedom of religion, belief and opinion
- Freedom of expression
- Assembly, demonstration, picket and petition
- Freedom of association
- Political rights
- Citizenship
- Freedom of movement and residence
- Freedom of trade, occupation and profession
- Labour relations
- Environment

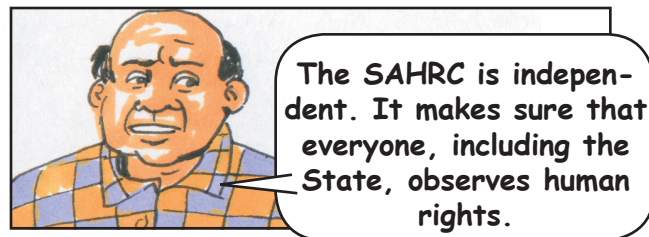

- Property
- Housing
- Health care, food, water and social security
- Children
- Education
- Language and culture
- Cultural, religious and linguistic communities
- Access to information
- Just administrative action
- Access to courts
- Protects the rights of arrested, detained and accused persons

What are human rights violations?

If someone ignores or abuses your rights, it is called a violation of those rights.

SAHRC Mission

The Commission, as the independent national human rights institution, is created to support constitutional democracy through promoting, protecting and monitoring the attainment of everyone's human rights in South Africa without fear, favour or prejudice.

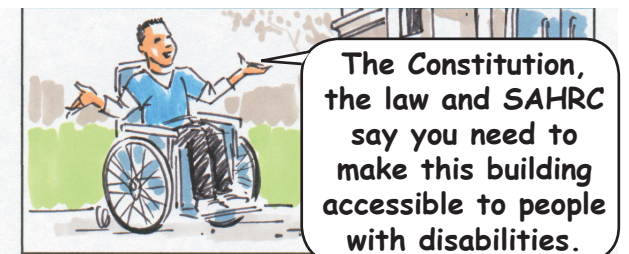

The SAHRC is independent. It makes sure that everyone, including the State, observes human rights.

What are the functions of the SAHRC?

- It promotes respect for human rights and a culture of human rights
- It protects human rights
- It monitors human rights in the Republic.

What does the SAHRC do?

- Develops an awareness of human rights in South Africa
- Investigates complaints of human rights violations
- Monitors serious cases of human rights violations and their progress through the courts
- Monitors and reports annually to Parliament on the State's progress in bringing socio-economic rights to all South Africans
- Conducts workshops, training programmes, public education and community outreach campaigns, seminars, talks and presentations
- Develops and distributes materials and publications
- Integrates human rights into education at all levels
- Monitors and supports the implementation of the Promotion of Access to Information Act (PAIA) and the Promotion of Equality and the Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act (PEPUDA)
- Monitors the development of new legislation and interacts with Parliament
- Monitors the media to track human rights issues
- Conducts public inquiries around widespread human rights violations

The Constitution, the law and SAHRC say you need to make this building accessible to people with disabilities.
